

This series is all about talking about Jesus. We sometimes call that "evangelism." Talking about Jesus sometimes makes us feel...well, a little awkward. And hopefully this series will help with that.

HANGOUT

1. What is one topic you could talk about for hours and hours? Why?
2. Have you ever asked someone else what they believe about...everything?
3. Have you ever had a conversation about the good news of Jesus with someone else?

HEAR

4. Re-read 1 Corinthians 2:1-5.
  - a. Does anything stick out to you? Why?
  - b. Why do you think Paul withheld being overly impressive in his gospel presentations? What is the benefit of this?
  - c. Paul connects "the testimony of God" with "Jesus Messiah and him crucified". Paul not only preached this, but lived it ("knew" it). What do you think he means by this? What could this look like in your life today?
5. Read 1 Corinthians 9:19-23.
  - a. What stands out to you from this passage?
  - b. Put Paul's thoughts into your own words regarding the kind of people you want to reach with the gospel. "To the _____ I became like a _____." What would that look like for you in a spiritually curious conversation?
  - c. How far can we practice this without becoming fake? What is the key to doing this with integrity?
6. ROLE PLAY! In partners, have a question-based spiritually curious conversation. Get to know each other's beliefs and why they came to hold those beliefs, making sure to practice phrasing as much as possible in the form of a question. (If you get stalled, try some specific topics, like music or movies just to get the juices flowing. The point is the practice of learning through question asking.)

HUDDLE

7. Do you have a friend or two that you'd actually like to start a conversation with about what they believe? Share a name and pray for them.
8. Pray for the other stuff that is going on in your lives (e.g. what might be the barriers we have about sharing the good news of Jesus?).
